Walt Disney's Adventures in Wonderland

No story in English literature has intrigued me more than Lewis Carroll's 'Alice in Wonderland,'" Walt Disney once told a journalist. "It fascinated me the first time I read it as a schoolboy and as soon as I possibly could, after I started making animated cartoons, I acquired the film rights to it. People in his period had no time to waste on frivolity, yet Carroll with his nonsense and fantasy furnished a balance between seriousness and enjoyment which everybody needed then and still needs today."

With those words in mind, we take pleasure in presenting Walt's version of "Alice in Wonderland" as the second attraction in our Summer Animation Festival. But before going behind the scenes and telling you something about the making of this musical wonderfilm, let's quickly review its source.

All in the golden afternoon of July 4, 1862, an English math teacher named Charles Dodgson took three little girls on an outing and began telling them a story that would make him famous. They had asked for a fairy tale "with some nonsense in it." He obliged by inventing the adventures of a child who, like one of his listeners, was named Alice. Eventually, using the nom de plume of Lewis Carroll, Dodgson wrote out the "Alice" stories and on July 4, 1865, exactly three years after their memorable outing, gave Miss Alice Liddell the first presentation copy of the book she inspired. Its sequel, "Through the Looking Glass (& What Alice Found There)," appeared in 1871.

Walt chose to adapt both books for his animated film. "And the problems were apparent from the first staff conferences," he admitted. "It takes a reader six or seven hours to get through the books. We had only 75 minutes of screen time to cover that ground. There are over 80 characters in Carroll's stories. To have introduced them, one after the other, with a minute for each, would have exceeded the length of the picture." Walt's solution was to carve out half the characters and combine some of the chapters without losing their flavor.

Next came the task of deciding how the inhabitants of Wonderland would sound. Voices key the personalities of cartoon characters, but who'd ever heard a caterpillar, Cheshire cat, walrus, dormouse or any of Carroll's bizarre brainchildren talk? In due course Walt signed 30 persons for offscreen speaking parts, headed by 12-year-old Kathryn Beaumont as Alice, Ed Wynn as the Mad Hatter, Richard Haydn as the Caterpillar, Sterling Holloway as the Cheshire Cat, and Jerry Colonna as the March Hare.

Finally, in keeping with the spirit of Lewis Carroll's books, Walt added 10 songs which, like the movie itself, have become classics. From the opening "Alice in Wonderland" chorale, through songs like "I'm Late," "All in the Golden Afternoon" and "Twas Brillig," to the "March of the Cards" finale, these numbers remain among Disney's most memorable.

Walt and his creative staff spent three years translating "Alice in Wonderland" to film. We hope you'll agree with the critic who wrote, "Walt Disney has fashioned Lewis Carroll's famous literary work into a wonderful entertainment, brilliantly capturing the fanciful qualities of the book and the seemingly impossible adventures of Alice as she wends her way through the wonderland of her imagination." ♡

Stay tuned for "The Sword in the Stone" next month.

During Disneyland's construction Walt was often on the site, checking details

It all began when, as a young father, Walt Disney spent many weekend afternoons watching his two small daughters enjoy themselves at amusement parks designed solely for children. Within his busy imagination, Walt started forming ideas for a place where everyone in the family—children, parents and grandparents—could participate and have fun together.

Walt's original plan took the shape of a "magical little park" which he proposed to build on two acres of land adjacent to his movie studio in Burbank, California. The park would have singing waterfalls and life-size statues of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and other famous Disney characters.

"The longer Walt thought about the park, the more ideas he got, and suddenly the weed-filled lot wasn't enough," recalls John Hench, who worked for 15 years as a Disney Studio artist before being assigned to the team of original Disneyland designers. Walt's ideas grew so expansive that eventually, in 1953, he commissioned the Stanford Research Institute to find an ideal location for his park. It turned out to be a 160-acre parcel in Anaheim, California.

"When I first saw the site, it was all flat land," Walt told a reporter. "No rivers, no mountains, no castles or rocket ships—just orange groves and a few acres of walnut trees. It was something I kept playing around with. I'd bring home plans and work on them over the weekend, then I'd get a draftsman to lay them out for me. He worked on my personal payroll, and I had to reimburse the studio for him."

Finally, ground was broken for Disneyland on July 21, 1954, and almost exactly one year later the Magic Kingdom opened its gates to a waiting world. To build his dream, however, Walt had risked nearly all the fortune he had earned through the years; he sold his vacation home in Palm Springs, and even borrowed against his insurance policy. Moreover, it was widely predicted that his venture would be a colossal failure. There had never been an amusement park of the scale and quality Walt had promised for his Magic Kingdom, and certainly none had come close to his seemingly outlandish investment of $17 million. (The current capital investment figure is $307 million.)

Nevertheless, 28,154 guests and a live national television audience of 90 million witnessed Disneyland's opening on July 17, 1955. Emceeding the ABC-TV special were Art Linkletter, Bob Cummings, and Ronald Reagan.

True to Walt's words, Disneyland was an immediate success. And extravagant plans are underway to honor the 250 millionth visitor this year. On New Year's Day, 1985, the Magic Kingdom's "Gift-Giver Extraordinaire Machine" was unveiled at the main entrance. A computerized wonder, this specially created device will award 400,000 prizes to Disneyland guests throughout the year. Gifts range from commemorative Disneyland passports to General Motors automobiles. More than 100 of the latter have been won so far, and the winners are always surprised.

But the luckiest winner of all will be the 250 millionth visitor. That yet unknown person will receive, among other prizes, a new Cadillac, 30,000 free air miles courtesy of PSA, 30 days at a Disney theme park, and 30 nights at a Disney hotel. 🐻

Don Knotts Strengthens His Pipsqueak Image

One of the best-known faces in the entertainment world belongs to a former pipsqueak who parlayed a case of terminal jitters into a comedy career. It's a bad week on TV when Don Knotts doesn't turn up somewhere, usually late at night in an early movie built around a nervous little fellow named Limpet, Chicken, Figg or Peacock. Although he's tackled more substantial roles, Knotts occasionally returns like a rueful lover to his prototype character: the quavering wretch who is a surefire laugh-getter. You'll find him back in form this month as the Denver Kid, deputy sheriff of a mean-dog frontier town, in "Hot Lead & Cold Feet" (see page 10).

"I'm the law in that town, so you can see the kind of shape it's in," Knotts said. "I know I wouldn't want to live any place that would have me for a sheriff."

"But seriously, I have been trying to get away from that 'nervous' character everybody knows. I recently finished five years of 'Three's Company' on television, and there's some talk about doing a TV movie with Andy Griffith centered around 'Mayberry.'"

"Last month I appeared at Auburn University in 'A Lecture in Comedy,' a program I put together which I'd like to present on the college concert circuit. This month my daughter Karen and I are on stage in Michigan in 'Norman, Is That You?' I've been doing theater fairly regularly. I can play parts there that I'd never be given on TV."

"I have to be careful though," Knotts admitted. "I keep trying to do something more dramatic on the stage, and the minute I walk on people start laughing. Frankly I find that tiresome, but I'm not going to give back the money."

The fact is that Knotts grew up wanting to be an actor, not a comedian. "My mother loved the movies and she always took me with her," he said. "For the first seven or eight years of my life I practically lived in the dark, watching movie after movie."

"That was when I knew I wanted to be an actor. A comedian I didn't know about yet, but an actor I did."

As time went on, Knotts drifted toward comedy. He became a boy ventriloquist, working up an act featuring a mail order dummy and material derived from Edgar Bergen, Jack Benny, Fred Allen and other top radio comedians of the day. Eventually he created his own comedy style, for many years based upon a jittery, befuddled character.

"The nervous man was one joke, really, and all the jokes were written around him," Knotts said. "I wanted to be able to do other characters. I found that I was a better visual comedian than a verbal one, and I enjoyed doing pantomime and reactions and stuff like that."

Offscreen Don Knotts is a much different bird than the fumbling cuckoo he often portrays. He is calm and thoughtful, easygoing and well-organized. His hobbies are reading and golf.

"I don't tell anybody my handicap," he said, commenting about his game. "I'm the biggest liar that ever was, depending on whom I'm playing."

"At home I loaf and read. There's a pool table there, and I get on my feet once in a while and pick up a cue. Mostly, though, I just hang around the house." 🍷

There's hardly a down-beat moment as Sousa (Clifton Webb) forms a concert band in the 1890s and marches straight to success! (89 min.)

Alice in Wonderland

*Animated classic featuring the voice talents of Kathryn Beaumont, Ed Wynn,
Richard Haydn, Sterling Holloway,
Jerry Colonna, Verna Felton*

Don't be late for a very important date with "Alice in Wonderland," the second full-length Disney animated classic in our Summer Animation Festival!

The enchantment begins as Alice follows a harried White Rabbit down a mysterious tunnel and tumbles into a topsy-turvy dream world where nothing is what it ought to be.

From a merry "un-birthday" party with the Mad Hatter to an unpredictable croquet match with the Queen of Hearts, one non-sensical event follows

Alice joins the March Hare and Mad Hatter at a tea party, during which they celebrate an ongoing, year-long series of very happy "unbirthdays" another as Alice searches for a way home, meeting a host of curious creatures along the way.

Flamboyant color, 10 lilting songs, and unbridled imagination make this film an entrancing extravaganza of creativity and humor.

HOT LEAD & GOLD FEAT

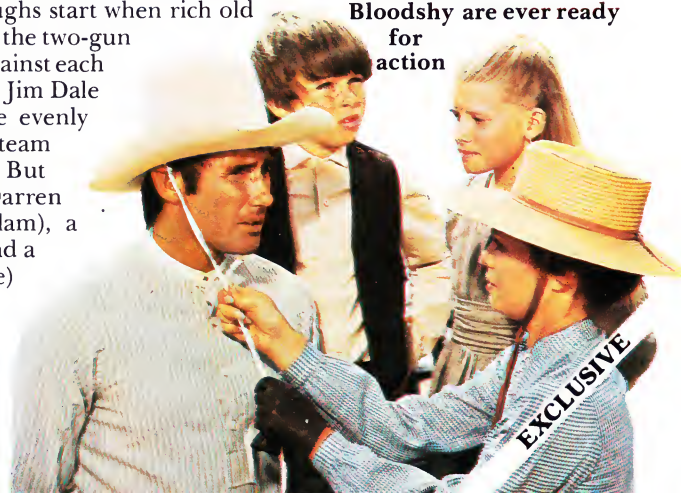

Movie starring Jim Dale, Karen Valentine, Don Knotts, Jack Elam, Darren McGavin

Something funny's going on in a Western frontier town—and you're sure to enjoy all the horsing around! The laughs start when rich old Jasper Bloodshy pits his two sons—Wild Billy, the two-gun terror, and Eli, a tenderfoot from the East—against each other in a series of endurance contests. Since Jim Dale plays all three Bloodshys, the brothers are evenly matched in their slapstick struggles with steam engines, canoes, and steep mountain slopes. But all bets are off when a crooked mayor (Darren McGavin), a rusty gunfighter (Jack Elam), a nervous deputy sheriff (Don Knotts), and a romantic schoolmarm (Karen Valentine) help create comical complications.

THE LITTLE FOXES

Movie starring Bette Davis, Herbert Marshall, Dan Duryea, Teresa Wright, Richard Carlson

We're All Ears

Linda Palmer
Subscriber Services Director

Dear Friends,

It's a month for celebration on The Disney Channel, and I hope you'll join us for the fireworks! We've planned a July Americana Jubilee of films and specials to salute our heritage and history (see page 8)—plus we're doing our part to light the candles for Disneyland's 30th birthday with a number of colorful and nostalgic programs (see page 4).

One of the things I love most about the United States is our diversity of people and cultures. When I worked as a tour guide at Disneyland, I met so many wonderful folks from all over the country. Recalling their enthusiastic response to the Magic Kingdom, I'm sure they—and you—will join us in wishing America and Disneyland "Happy Birthday" this month.

Are you enjoying the Summer Animation Festival? Have you entered the sweepstakes for July? This is your last chance to win, and we've got more prizes than ever, so get out your felt tip pens and enter soon!

Sincerely,

Linda

STILL FANS OF "STILL THE BEAVER"

My whole family can't wait to see the new "Still the Beaver" episodes. I wish there were more than two a month! It's great to see the old cast together again. But I miss Hugh Beaumont. The Thanksgiving episode was wonderful! Was the lady who played the aunt really Hugh Beaumont's sister? We read the credits over and over to check her name.

Kathleen Ann Pfeffer
Ralston, NE

The aunt in the "Thanksgiving Day" episode of "Still the Beaver," Gloria Beaumont Bussman, is indeed Hugh Beaumont's sister.

PLEASE, NO EDITING!

I tuned in to watch "Donald in Mathmagic Land," a featurette I remembered fondly from my school days, and was very upset to find that you had cut it drastically. I would like very much to see it at its full length, as it is an excellent show.

Charles M. Howell IV
Los Angeles, CA

Scheduling constraints sometimes make it necessary to show edited versions of films such as "Donald in Mathmagic Land." We have aired the full, 26 minute version in the past and will undoubtedly do so again for the benefit of our many subscribers who've requested it.

CALLING ALL ANNETTE FANS

It was wonderful seeing Annette again in "Lots of Luck." I've been a fan of hers since she was a Mouseketeer! I'd love to join a fan club—do you know if anyone has started one?

Peter Gast
Minneapolis, MN

You can reach the Annette Funicello Fan Club, which has been active for 22 years, by writing to Rita Rose, 10075 Dedham Drive, Indianapolis, IN 46229.

NEW PAGES FOR "EPCOT MAGAZINE"?

Are there going to be any new "EPCOT Magazine" shows? We really enjoy the series and wonder what's going to happen to it.

Donna Vizzard
Granada Hills, CA

"EPCOT Magazine" left the Channel in May for a hiatus. Watch for "EPCOT America! America!" airing this fall.

HURRAHS FOR CARNIVAL OF CULTURE

"Carnival of the Animals" was superb! What a fantastic blend of the classical and the whimsical. Please find more programs that bring culture to life like this! We really enjoyed it.

Jeanine Buckingham
Virginia Beach, VA

My children and I loved "Carnival of the Animals"! I'm planning to purchase an album for my children so they can continue to enjoy Saint-Saens music. Are there more shows like that around? If so, more, more, more!

Make Family History With A Month-Long Celebration Of Our Heritage

It's time to chill the watermelon, hang out the flag, and light the sparklers! This year, extend your traditions over the month with activities that can increase your family's understanding and appreciation of our American heritage. Try some of the ideas suggested here, or come up with your own. Who knows, the activity you try this year may become next year's tradition!

1) What was happening in your neck of the woods in 1776? Find out by checking the library and local museums. Then follow up with trips to local monuments, ruins, and historical sites or buildings.

2) Check out books on clothing and furniture of that period. Using them as a guide: 1) sew a costume or doll dress; 2) build a simple piece of furniture; or 3) make a miniature reproduction of a colonial room or house.

3) Choose a famous person from the Revolutionary War era (or someone who lived in your area during that time) and learn as much as you can about him or her.

4) Look up and cook colonial recipes such as hasty pudding, or try your hand at candle and soap making — the old fashioned way.

5) Spend an entire day living as much like our colonial forefathers as possible. Get up and go to bed early. Don't use electricity or running water. Cook outdoors or in your fireplace, light your house with candles, and read aloud or play games for your nightly entertainment.

Exploring the Archives

Dave Smith established the Walt Disney Archives in 1970. Its collections are as varied as the activities of Walt Disney Productions.

Whatever happened to Walt Disney's backyard train which we saw on "Where Do the Stories Come From"? —L.H., Seattle, Wash.

The small-scale Carolwood-Pacific Railroad, which Walt built at his home in Holmby Hills in 1950, remained in place for only a few years. After Walt had a much larger train on which to ride at Disneyland (1955), he removed his setup at home, and the trains went into storage. Several of the cars were exhibited as part of the Walt Disney Story at Walt Disney World from 1973 to 1981, and the caboose has been on exhibit until recently at Disneyland.

Someone told me that the Osmond Brothers got their start at Disneyland. Is that true? —P.J., Louisville, Ky.

Yes it is. In the summer of 1962 the boys, dressed alike, were noticed by the barbershop quartet on Main Street at Disneyland. When asked if they sang, they agreed to do a number. Each group sang a song and the concert went on for almost an hour, attracting and delighting a large crowd. The Osmonds were then brought to the Disneyland entertainment office where their talents were recognized and they were signed to their first professional contract. Performing that summer at Disneyland started the Osmond Brothers on the road to fame.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

Actress Kathryn Beaumont did such a good job as the voice of Alice in "Alice in Wonderland" (see page 10) that Walt Disney also used her in his next animated feature, as the voice of Wendy in "Peter Pan." Ms. Beaumont is now grown up and teaching at a school not far from the Disney Studio.

With "Dateline Disneyland" airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney" this month, you might be interested in a few facts about Disneyland's opening day on July 17, 1955:

The TV special was a live show, airing on the ABC Network, and billed as the "biggest live telecast in history."

ABC utilized 24 cameras and a staff of hundreds in producing the show.

The day at Disneyland was an invitational opening only; the public would not be admitted until the next day.

Guests caused a seven-mile traffic jam on the Santa Ana Freeway, with a normally 45-minute trip from Los Angeles taking two hours.

The show aired at 4:30 on that Sunday afternoon and despite some confusion and missed cues was an unqualified success, reaching a huge audience.

Readers who have Disney-related questions can write to Dave Smith, c/o The Disney Channel Magazine, 4111 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, CA 91505.
